BODY DONATION PROGRAM

Body donation is one of the selfless acts of donating one's body after death without any conditions or rewards for the sake of education and research in medicine.

The Body Donation Program at our University encourages public to donate bodies after death for the cause of science & society, or register as prospective donors so the nearest/ legal heirs would donate after death.

The experience and education gained through the use of human cadaver through dissection is far superior to learning provided by artificial substitutes and text books.

In addition to being used for teaching medical and other health professionals, bodies that are donated are used by surgeons to acquire surgical skills.

Dear Prospective Donor:

If you wish to register with our program, please fill the body donor's form and submit to the following address in-person or by post.
